COMFLUENT
where the networks meet

Location, Location, Colocation.

Comfluent's colocation services offer you unparalleled carrier access in a facility that lets you sleep at night. You can rest assured that your hardware and data is safe within our reliable Denver data center, while enjoying access to unmatched high-bandwidth Internet connectivity and last-mile access.

We're in the middle of Denver, in the middle of Colorado, in the middle of the country, in the middle of the networking world. The building we're in, at 910 15th St., is the one place in Denver the carriers have gathered.

Because of that, we can offer access to almost any carrier you could want - from the Internet providers offering radically low prices, to the ability to get direct fiber interconnects to multiple backbones, to the ability to connect to end-user locations over a wider choice of last-mile providers than anywhere else in Colorado. It's all right here.

Direct connections to or between the carriers let you cut out the middle man. That means lower cost, lower latency, and fewer points of failure.

Our current facility has fully redundant AC and DC power - redundant UPS and redundant generator. We feature overengineered high density cooling, FM-200 fire suppression, free customer Wi-Fi, proximity card 24/7 access, and just about anything else you could need.

On top of that, we're expanding again. Coming in early 2007, we will have another facility across the street from our current location at 1500 Champa. It will offer the same great connectivity as our current location, but much more space, and much more power.

Pricing for this service is determined on a custom basis. We pride ourselves on working with one client at a time - to develop precise solutions to meet their business needs.
